"SPECIAL" WAGES AND AGREEMENTS.

Two of the greatest employment problems in the West, lumbering and mining, have been beset by unusual and general conditions. The industry has been hit by a combination of factors, including a shortage of labor and a decline in demand.

The industry has been hit by a combination of factors, including a shortage of labor and a decline in demand. The industry has been hit by a combination of factors, including a shortage of labor and a decline in demand. The industry has been hit by a combination of factors, including a shortage of labor and a decline in demand.

Thousands of men are unemployed today, due to these demands of the powerful railroad unions which seek to retain special compensation at the expense of every other workman and industry in the nation, even though such tactics add heavily to the burden of industries which are struggling to maintain and operate under normal conditions.

Can one class of workmen long extort profits at the expense of wages and earnings of others?

CO-OPERATION THE ESSENTIAL FACTOR.

American industry is facing a period of unprecedented competition. Every returning traveler brings reports of the speeding up of the German industrial machine and every seaport in this country furnishes evidence of the ability of European manufacturers to place products in the American market at prices below the domestic costs. Efficiency in production must be the watchword of American producers if our industries are to maintain a continued development.

The effective mobilization of American industry during the war indicated the possibilities of standardized methods and co-ordinated efforts. The demobilization of industry after the war furnished the best evidence of the dangers of the failure to provide for a continuance of co-operative effort, and of establishing teamwork between the basic factors in industrial progress.

During the last 18 months there has been a continual conflict between labor and the employer, between the carriers and the shipper, and in many industries there has been a cut-throat competition resulting in industrial demoralization between individual producers. Such conditions if continued will inevitably result in the failure of American industry.

can industry to meet present-day conditions, and no amount of protection or government assistance will prevent the stoppage of production and the cutting down of plant capacity.

Realizing these facts which are particularly applicable to the mining industry, the American Mining Congress at its twenty-fourth annual convention in Chicago will devote a considerable part of its program to the development of teamwork and co-operation between the mine producer, the manufacturer of mine equipment and the railroads in the hope that through such co-operation a constructive program can be created which will be of far-reaching benefit both to the industry and to the nation.

If American industry is to effectively meet world competition, production must be made under wise and practical regulation for co-operation. The effect of the continued production and distribution of products.

At the mining congress, the American Mining Congress, through the conferences and discussions at the convention, hopes to see the formation of a platform which will inaugurate a new era of mine production and of national prosperity.

During the first eight months of 1921 our total exports of cotton were 1,925,000 pounds, valued at $238,000,000, for an average pound export price of a trifle over 12 cents. During that period Germany purchased $465,000,000 worth of cotton, in addition with many other agricultural products, is among the first to return to a pre-war normal, which is hard on the farmer, but not the fault of politics.

It is just possible that Barleson's failure to locate markets was an individual failure. Perhaps the Europeans thought his deliveries would be as slow as was his mail service and they didn't care to deal in "figures" which gave promise of being too remote.

DRUG PLANTS ARE FOUND IN RIVER BASIN

(By Associated Press)
 NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—New drug plants and species of insects have been discovered in the Amazon river basin by the Mufford biological expedition party, according to word received at the Columbia university school of pharmacy from the head of the expedition, Dr. H. H. Rusby. Curious forms of reptiles and birds have also been encountered, in addition to botanical specimens of great scientific value.

All members of the party were reported in good health and Dr. Rusby said that most satisfactory results had been obtained, notwithstanding irritating delays and difficulty in obtaining reliable information or dependable assistants.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LOOK FROM A WINDOW.

Look from your window on the world.
 And you will understand
 Not purposeless minutes were hurled
 Upon the fertile land.
 Will think no more from slum
 Whirled
 This planet was unplanned.

Look from a window, window high,
 And see the thing complete.
 Inside one house your soul will die
 Before the house, the street,
 Behold the town, the world that is
 Stretched out before your feet.
 Your eyes touch other faces, and
 They
 With other eyes combine—
 A block, a mile, they stretch away,
 A great unbroken line
 Beyond your city, after—yes,
 What is one house of mine?
 Look from your window on mankind,
 A man and not a mole.
 A man has vision, notes are blind.
 For them no planets roll,
 Look forward, friend, and you will find
 That
 Each soul a kindred soul
